Re: United States v. Galanis, S3 16 Cr. 371 (RA)

Dear Judge Abrams:

I represent Devon Archer and write in response to the government's letter of this afternoon concerning Code Rebel. The government letter misstates the Court's rulings, misstates the evidence, and makes plain its intention to argue inferences that are totally unsupported by the actual evidence. Moreover, the government has also made plain that it intends to use the excluded pump and dump evidence, albeit without actually proving that any such fraud occurred. As to Mr. Archer, the fact remains that the Code Rebel shares have absolutely nothing to do with the WLCC bonds, and there is no evidence to the contrary.

First, and most importantly, the government misstates the evidence. It claims that the Code Rebel shares represented "a straightforward payout from Jason Galanis. Jason Galanis's payment of these shares to Archer in the midst of their criminal dealings is no different (and no less admissible) than if Galanis had simply wired $19 million directly to Archer." (Gov. Ltr. at 3). But this argument is entirely counter-factual: even according to the government's proposed demonstrative exhibit, attached as Exhibit A to its letter, the money transferred to RSTP Capital and used to purchase the Code Rebel shares came from Jason Sugarman, not Jason Galanis. Galanis's name does not appear anywhere on that chart. As Mr. Archer pointed out previously, there is absolutely no factual predicate for the government to argue that these shares were some sort of quid pro quo for Mr. Archer's alleged involvement in the WLCC bond scheme – no document or witness supports that theory. Having been challenged to point to any such evidence, the government has again come up empty.¹

For the same reason, Mr. Archer did not invite the government to introduce this evidence by observing that he lost money. That remark was a response to the government's assertion in openings that Mr. Archer received $15 million, i.e., the money that was invested in the second WLCC bond issuance. But the Code Rebel shares have nothing whatsoever to do with the WLCC bonds. Moreover, even including the Code Rebel shares, Mr. Archer still lost money. Mr. Archer never sold a single share of Code Rebel, and ultimately transferred them for no consideration. He therefore lost the money that he, from his own pocket and having nothing whatsoever to do with the WLCC bonds, had invested in Code Rebel.

¹ There have been several other times that the government has been wholly unable to point to evidence that other people's criminality was known or reasonably foreseeable to Mr. Archer, which it nonetheless seeks to introduce against him. For example, the government has still been unable to point to any evidence showing that it was reasonably foreseeable to Mr. Archer that Michelle Morton failed to disclose his alleged control over Atlantic Asset Management on its Form ADV, or that she was required to disclose him.

Second, the government's letter misstates both the Court's previous rulings and its own representations about the nature of the evidence it sought to admit. Tellingly, the government does not point to any briefing or argument in which it purportedly made "clear" that it intended to introduce evidence against Mr. Archer of shares of Code Rebel that had been fully paid-for using funds totally unrelated to the WLCC bonds. (June 3, 2018 Gov't Ltr. at 1).² On the contrary, as set forth in Mr. Archer's letter of yesterday, the government has insisted repeatedly, for months, that apart from the alleged pump and dump, the Code Rebel evidence was necessary to establish that (i) "proceeds of the fourth bond issuance" were used to "purchase a significant percentage of the shares of the Code Rebel IPO," and (ii) proceeds "from the Code Rebel IPO" were "used to make the interest payment for the first bond issuance." [ECF No. 369, at 11-12]. In ruling on the government's Rule 404(b) motion, the Court held it would permit evidence of precisely those two "facts." 4/13/2018 Hr'g Tr. at 19:6-25. The evidence the government now seeks to admit is utterly unrelated to the WLCC bonds, let alone the bond proceeds or interest payments, and the government's unsupported insistence to the contrary is insufficient to establish otherwise.

The government's other attempts to show that Mr. Archer was on notice of its new argument following the Court's clear ruling are simply false. First, the government attempts to re-write its own statement in the course of the parties' negotiations over a stipulation, contending that its reference to how Code Rebel shares were "disposed of" was somehow a reference to the purchase of Code Rebel shares by RSTP Capital. But there is only one way to read the government's statement:

Judge Abrams has precluded evidence that Code Rebel was a pump and dump scheme, but has allowed evidence about how shares were purchased using bond proceeds and then how those shares were disposed of.

[ECF No. 493, Ex. B, at 2 (emphasis added)]. In stating that the Court had "allowed evidence about how shares were purchased using bond proceeds and then how those shares were disposed of," the government was obviously reiterating the Court's ruling that the government was permitted to establish both that money from the fourth bond issuance was used to purchase

² The government's focus on the question of whether Mr. Archer's "mere receipt of . . . shares (or the value of those shares) is inadmissible" is misplaced. (Gov. Ltr. at 1.) Any attempt to cast as illicit the receipt of shares that were paid for using money that the government concedes was not related to the WLCC bonds or otherwise tainted is totally irrelevant, especially in the absence of any evidence that the shares were some sort of in-kind payment for some unspecified criminal conduct on Mr. Archer's part.

Code Rebel shares, and that Code Rebel shares were used to cover the interest payment on the first bond issuance. The government's claim that its reference to "how those shares were disposed of" somehow constituted clear notice of its intention to establish that fully paid-for shares having nothing to do with the WLCC bonds were somehow compensation for being part of a criminal conspiracy does not hold up. The only plausible reading of the government's statement is that Code Rebel evidence was admissible to show (a) the purchase of Code Rebel shares using bond proceeds, and (b) the disposition of those shares to pay the coupon on the WLCC bonds. And that is precisely what the Court had ordered. The government's attempts to re-interpret its own words should be rejected.

Likewise, the suggestion that Mr. Archer was on notice of the government's anticipated argument, notwithstanding the Court's ruling and his objection to non-conforming uses of the evidence, is absurd. The exhibit the government points to, GX 1240, is a 140 page document that appears to reflect all or nearly all of the shareholders of Code Rebel. The government's argument seems to be that Mr. Archer should have scoured these 140 pages, realized that entities called Thunder Valley Engineering and Seymour Capital are not referenced in it but that (on pages 78 and 87 of the exhibit) Rosemont Seneca Bohai LLC is, and concluded that the government therefore intended to argue that the purchase of shares with money having nothing to do with the WLCC bonds was therefore admissible in its opinion. The expectation that Mr. Archer should have evaluated the evidence in this way is crazy, especially because there are numerous other reasons why the government could have sought to use this exhibit. For example:

- The exhibit (pp. 1 and 139) shows shares going to Hugh Dunkerley. The government could have sought to bring that out in connection with Dunkerley testifying about the use of Code Rebel in connection with the WLCC bond proceeds.
- Similarly, the exhibit (pp. 2 and 90) shows shares being issued to Mr. Cooney, which shares the government does appear to contend were funded using WLCC bond proceeds.
- The exhibit (pp. 4 and 129) also shows shares being issued to something called Condor Financial, which Francisco Martin has explained purchased a portion of the WLCC bonds from Bonwick Capital; the Code Rebel shares could have been an advance payment for the money spent on the bonds. See 3522-6 at 4 ("The purchase of the $100,000 of tribal bonds from BONWICK CAPITAL PARTNERS (BONWICK) occurred after GALANIS was arrested. GALANIS asked MARTIN if he had a company that could be used as a placeholder for a bond. GALANIS suggested CONDOR, to purchase the WAKPAMNI TRIBE bonds from BONWICK.").
- The exhibit also shows (at p. 6) Jason Galanis's entity, Thorsdale, received an allocation. Similarly, Galanis's father-in-law Ralph Berger (p. 78) also got an allocation. That evidence could have represented the misappropriation of the proceeds of the WLCC bonds.
- The exhibit shows (at pp. 78 and 111) that Francisco Martin received shares, which Martin will testify were part of his compensation from Jason Galanis. See 3522-6 at 1 ("Martin received CODE REBEL shares as part of his compensation package from Galanis."); 3522-6 at 2 ("MARTIN's total compensation from GALANIS was $300,000 including CODE REBEL shares over a two year period.").

The suggestion that Mr. Archer should have been able to divine the government's intention to violate the Court's clear ruling based upon this document is ridiculous.³ GX 1240 is attached for the Court's convenience. I respectfully invite the Court to review it and see for itself if the government's current argument was "clear" from its face.

Third, and finally, in the event that the Court decides to reconsider its prior ruling and admit the Code Rebel evidence against Mr. Archer, the government should not be able to argue that he was rewarded with $19 million in stock. See Gov. Ltr. at 3 ("the Government intends to demonstrate for the jury simply that (i) Archer and Cooney received Code Rebel shares for which they had not paid in the midst of the criminal conspiracy; (ii) Jason Galanis directed the issuance of these shares; and (iii) the shares were worth tens of millions of dollars."). Even if the evidence were admissible, Mr. Archer was "rewarded" with only $485,000 in stock (in addition to the $200,000 in stock he paid for himself). Even according to the government's evidence, the $485,000 transfer occurred in June 2014, whereas the Code Rebel IPO did not occur until May 2015, and the shares did not become worth "tens of millions of dollars" until at least June 2015, when they were valued by Morgan Stanley at $16.5 million. See GX 301.⁴ By the following month, however, their market value had dropped from more than $16 million to about $3.5 million; in October they were worth $2.5 million; and in December they had dropped to $1.3 million. In January 2016, the shares were transferred out of Rosemont Seneca Bohai LLC's account for no consideration.

The government, in short, wishes to point to a $16.5 million valuation that lasted for a matter of days, and argue that that high water mark represents the value of a "gift" from Jason Galanis – even though neither Jason Galanis nor the WLCC bonds financed the shares. This represents nothing less than the government seeking to introduce the pump and dump, without proving it up. If Mr. Archer was given anything "illicitly" – and he was not – it was the $485,000 in cash used to finance the shares, not the $16.5 million that the shares were fleetingly worth. That is especially true because Mr. Archer did not sell a single share at that valuation, or any other valuation. Thus, if this evidence is permitted – and it should not be – the government must be limited to attempting to prove up $485,000 in "illicit" compensation.

³ So, too, is the government's suggestion that it was incumbent on Mr. Archer to "seek further clarity from the Court." (Gov. Ltr. at 2). Unlike the Jason Galanis arrest ruling – where the government had at least attempted to re-argue the ruling and explicitly stated that it still wished to introduce Jason Galanis's arrest even if John Galanis's and Gary Hirst's arrests were excluded – the government never sought to relitigate or enlarge the Code Rebel ruling. It cannot possibly be Mr. Archer's responsibility to imagine every way that the government could seek to avoid a court order and then seek clarification that it is not allowed to do so.

⁴ It is not clear where the government gets $19 million from. The June 2015, $16.5 million valuation is the stock's high water mark.
